Upsets Already

The completion of the second week of competition in the city softball circuit reveals an already large number of upsets in the previous season. Teams which on paper looked as dominant factors in the little scramble now appear in a much different light and teams which looked like certain losers are now the leading contenders.

Facts—Not Fancy

Not that it makes any particular difference but here are a few facts and figures gleaned from the softball schedule up to yesterday. Yesterday's games were not included as they were not yet played.

Those Red Birds

It has been a long time since Columbus has supported a baseball team able to cut any kind of a figure in the American Association.

BAT AGAIN DRUBBED BY BILLY PETROLLE Ex-Champ Absorbs Lacing from Veteran Fists of Fargo Express. CHICAGO, May 21—Bat Petrolle, ought to be about ready to admit that Billy Petrolle can lick him. The former world featherweight champion, fortified with rare courage, stood in the ring here last night and traded slugs with the old Fargo Express, and even knocked him down a count of nine in the first round. But after it was all over, Petrolle had earned a ten-round decision. And except for the first and the fourth rounds, Battalini took a decisive beating. In the middle of the first round a left hook landed squarely on Petrolle's chin and he went down to remain as long as he dared, but at the end of the round, he was popping the Hartford youth with vicious lefts and rights, and he kept right on doing it until Battalini made a last, gallant effort to turn defeat into victory. They were about even until the sixth, but after that session, Petrolle clearly was master.

American Girl Wins Honor, Title as South Sea Resident

My International News Service, DENVER, Colo.—As the only married white girl on the island of Futuna, Simon for a year and a half Cynthia Jane Crowell now a resident at Denver university was designated "queen" of the island. Miss Crowell's father, Lieutenant Commander J. F. Crowell of the United States Navy was during that time assistant to the governor of the American governed island. He is now a patient in Fitzsimons General Hospital in Denver. I recently acted the part of a tourist. Miss Crowell said recently in recounting her experiences in the South Seas. "Though of course I didn't live in the native village. The three principal duties of the village maiden I learned to do. I learned to mix kava, the national drink in the round wooden bowl in which it is prepared. I learned to dance—a dance done chiefly with the arms and hands—and to entertain the guests of the chief. Miss Crowell was given the name Pafali along with the title of "queen." This name was formerly that of the daughter of a Samoan chief who ceded his position on the Manua group of islands to the United States. Miss Crowell although she has left the island of the mid Pacific for the harsher climate of the north, she will still bear the title of "queen" until she marries. My dress as a tourist was made of fine mat and Miss Crowell said this is a fabric woven from reeds and used for money. The boy wears a towering headpiece of half-pearls, mirrors and sticks. The hair is native hair bleached with lime until it is light red. During her father's extended service in the South Seas the Crowells lived in various possessions of the United States. Samoa where a steamship on its way to Australia stops only once every three weeks is her favorite place. The Samoans are so childlike in commercial matters, she said, that the government makes strict rules in an effort to keep them from being cheated. Physically they are splendid. The men are at least six feet tall and like browned goats. They are called the gentlemen of the Pacific. The women are pretty but putative when they are about 10 and rapidly get fat. Picking the PRESIDENTS 1856 - 1932

This is the seventh of a series of articles recounting highlights of political conventions of the past. They trace the nation's history from the 1850's to the present. This series has been prepared by The Associated Press as a forerunner to the National Republican and Democratic conventions scheduled for next month.

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, May 21. But for fortune's strange shuffle of the political cards immediately following the World war the 1932 presidential campaign lineup probably would be entirely different than it is today.

If it had not been for other-wise, Theodore Roosevelt and Herbert Hoover might have fought it out for the presidency in 1920. Warren G. Harding probably never would have been President and Calvin Coolidge possibly might have become a senator from Massachusetts, coming up in 1928 of this year perhaps for presidential consideration.

Had Hoover chosen to be a Democrat he might now be a leading candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination with the prospect of having Coolidge or some other stalwart Republican as his opponent in the 1932 White House derby.

Roosevelt at Forefront
In 1918, Theodore Roosevelt was regarded as the most powerful potential candidate for the 1920 Republican nomination, for his exposure of the Hughes cause in 1916 had brought him back into the G. O. P. fold.

However, Roosevelt died suddenly in 1919, and Hoover stated he was a Republican. It was in 1919 that the Eighteenth amendment became a part of the Constitution and the Volstead act was passed at the conventions this year.

In 1920 Gen. Leonard Wood, intimate friend of Roosevelt, and Francis Pickens of Illinois were the leading contenders. Into Chicago "Cheerful Holler" Hiram Johnson, vowing death to Woodrow Wilson's League of Nations.

But the political lightning, having difficulty finding a suitable conductor, landed on Warren G. Harding of Ohio. Harding had abandoned hope of getting the nomination and had closed his headquarters on the night it was decided to put him over.

Johnson Refuses Offer.
Johnson was offered the vice presidential nomination, but declined it. Had he accepted he would have become President upon Harding's death and very likely would have been a candidate to succeed himself in 1924. It was Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts who finally was nominated vice president.

Warren G. Harding and Calvin Coolidge, shown below, were the Republican standard-bearers in 1920, defeating James M. Cox and Franklin D. Roosevelt by a seven-million vote majority. The Democratic convention of 1921 was one of that party's most turbulent, lasting 17 days. Thomas J. Walsh is shown above speaking at that convention.

Harding and Mrs. Harding hurried to Washington and then moved home to begin the "front porch" campaign.

The Democrats nominated James M. Cox of Ohio for the presidency and Franklin D. Roosevelt for the vice presidency. Harding's campaign cry of "Back to normalcy" scotched Cox and Roosevelt with their defense of Wilson and the League of Nations. Harding won with a majority of 7,000,000 votes. It was the first time women were eligible to vote in every state.

Then Harding died, and Coolidge became President. Economic conditions were excellent.

The Republicans in 1924 nominated Coolidge, and the Democrats in one of the most turbulent conventions of their history finally chose John W. Davis of West Virginia after 103 ballots and a 17-day battle between Alfred E. Smith and William C. McAdoo and a number of favorite sons.

The weary delegates "acclaimed" Davis at the ending of the deadlock.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was Smith's floor manager, delivering the speech that placed the "happy warrior" in nomination.

Will Rogers received a vote on the 6th ballot.

Women were wearing very short dresses. A few of them had started to bob their hair.

New Phone Switchboard Installed Here Performs with Intelligence of Humans

One of the most modern telephone units in this state has just been installed for the C. D. & M. Electric Co. by the Ohio Associated Telephone Co.

There are 32 telephones in the offices of the C. D. & M. Electric Co. attached to the unit. These phones are connected with the local exchange by four trunk lines. The unit will handle seven telephone conversations among the employees and a maximum of four conversations with outside telephones at one time.

With the new unit in operation any person calling the electric company will be answered by the telephone attendant. She will learn from the caller who is wanted, and will make the proper connection. However, employees of the company can call to phones on the outside without placing the call with the attendant.

Make Own Calls
All 22 phones in the company are dial phones and each has a number.

ber, such as 24 or 25. If one employee wishes to speak to another on a different floor or in a different office, the proper number is dialed and contact is made. If the employee wishes to call to some outside resident, the number "8" is dialed first, automatically giving the caller a trunk line, and then the house number is dialed.

Special services are available with the unit. There is a "conference" number listed by which the president or any other executive of the company could carry on a conference or conversation with several employees at one time.

The system is a miniature exchange, complete within itself, and so far as calls within the building are concerned is 100 per cent automatic. It rings its own numbers, sounds its own busy signal, provides its own power, and automatically keeps itself in order.

Has Call Service
One of the special services soon to be added to the system is a call service. By its use, code numbers will be sounded on a gong, audible throughout the building, and an employee will answer to his code call at the nearest telephone regardless of what part of the building he is in. The person being called can communicate with the caller simply by dialing his own code number. This service will be used only when an employee is out of his own desk or when reach of his own telephone is lost.

The system is built in sections, and can be expanded and enlarged easily.

The unit is automatic to a remarkable degree. When batteries supplying the unit with current need recharging, an automatically operated switch connects them with the charger, and automatically disconnects the charger when the batteries are up to the right strength. This feature, such as signaling the telephone company if any repairs are needed, make it possible to use the unit with a minimum of attention.

CITY RUSHES STREET WORK

Most Extensive Repairs Under Way on North State Street.

The city service department this spring is now devoting attention to the repair of the surfaced streets of the city. Streets are being filled with asphalt and rolled down.

The city will be unable to roll for each street this year. Service Director E. O. Unsworth said rather than break up the streets that have formed from oiling in previous years, these streets will be scarified.

The repair of the hard surfaced streets is one feature of an extensive program of street work that has been carried on by the service department this year both as a means of providing work for the unemployed and making needed repairs.

The most extensive repair has been carried on on North State street where sharp corners have been cut back at various points. Storm water sewers extended and repaired and five feet on the east side of the street from the State Street school building almost to the railroad has been taken up and relaid in order to extend and repair the storm water sewer and to eliminate a bad condition due to the sinking of a sewer trench.

Indiana avenue from the George Washington school building east is being improved to provide a new for the children of the southeastern part of the city to reach the building. There are no sidewalks on this section of the street and since sidewalks cannot be built with gasoline tax money, the street is being improved to take the place of sidewalks.

New gutters have been dug and catch basins installed on many of the streets on the west side of the city in order to provide better drainage and prevent water from standing in the streets. A number of alleys have been included in the repair and improvement program which has also been extended to the airport where a force of men have cleaned up fence rows.

City Rushes Street Work

Most Extensive Repairs Under Way on North State Street.

The city service department this spring is now devoting attention to the repair of the surfaced streets of the city. Streets are being filled with asphalt and rolled down.

The city will be unable to roll for each street this year. Service Director E. O. Unsworth said rather than break up the streets that have formed from oiling in previous years, these streets will be scarified.

The repair of the hard surfaced streets is one feature of an extensive program of street work that has been carried on by the service department this year both as a means of providing work for the unemployed and making needed repairs.

The most extensive repair has been carried on on North State street where sharp corners have been cut back at various points. Storm water sewers extended and repaired and five feet on the east side of the street from the State Street school building almost to the railroad has been taken up and relaid in order to extend and repair the storm water sewer and to eliminate a bad condition due to the sinking of a sewer trench.

Indiana avenue from the George Washington school building east is being improved to provide a new for the children of the southeastern part of the city to reach the building. There are no sidewalks on this section of the street and since sidewalks cannot be built with gasoline tax money, the street is being improved to take the place of sidewalks.

New gutters have been dug and catch basins installed on many of the streets on the west side of the city in order to provide better drainage and prevent water from standing in the streets. A number of alleys have been included in the repair and improvement program which has also been extended to the airport where a force of men have cleaned up fence rows.

THIS PAPER HAS SOME INTERESTING NEWS ABOUT OLD FRIENDS of YOURS

WHENEVER you find an item about some one you used to know, or see the picture of a once-familiar place, there's an extra thrill in the news of the day. Fading memories grow bright . . . in a flash you begin to "remember when—"

Actually every newspaper you read is full of good news about friends of yours . . . friends that come into your home every day to help get the work done . . . friends you take with you when you go out . . . friends that make life easier, brighter, richer.

These friends are the foods, the clothes, the furnishings—the many modern comforts you meet in the advertisements. You know them well . . . know how they look and what they can do. Naturally you like to read all the news about them, for even old friends are constantly changing, growing more interesting, offering new ideas.

Marion Star advertisements bring you fresh and reliable news of things you could hardly do without. Form the good habit of reading them thoroughly every day. Watch them for news of your friends—old and new.

Several Congregations Will Honor Students in Morning Hour.

The commencement ceremony will be held at 7:30 p. m. Sunday at Epworth M. E. church will celebrate a day of honor paid to the graduates of the class of 1937 of Harding High School.

Rev. Howard L. Olewiler of the First Presbyterian church will deliver the commencement sermon. Many of the Marion churches will honor their members of the graduating classes with special services Sunday. Updown churches that have not announced special plans will observe the graduates in order that the members may attend the services at Epworth church.

Sermon Subject
Rev. Mr. Olewiler will address the graduates on the subject, "Open His Eyes." A 15-minute organ recital by Miss Maye Evangelina Lawrence, church organist, will precede the sermon. Her group will be composed of "Psalms" by Rogers, "In Summer" by Stobbs, a hymn, "Hallelujah" by Reynolds, "Bereaved" from "Mozart" by Godard, a choral prelude by McGinnis and "Offertories in D Minor" by Jankovic.

To the Graduates

A SERMONETTE BY KARL W. EDOWAY, Pastor, Prospect Street M. E. Church

There is no mistake of confusion of ideas when one calls the end the beginning. The end of the commencement ceremony is the beginning of another beginning, every career is the setting of a new goal, every day is the opportunity for a new start.

All over our fair land, our high schools, colleges and universities are in the days having their graduation exercises, and everywhere they speak of them as commencement. The required studies have been taken. The necessary credits for graduation have been acquired. And now, friends, and kindred extend congratulations to the work well done. But no "The end of the exploration is the beginning of the enterprise," in the completion of a course of studies is the beginning of larger responsibilities.

To our graduates we would say at this time "Go Forward." (Ex. 14:15) and meet these responsibilities with a courageous heart. Let no graduate think that now that the course of study is finished he can take his ease. But rather "Go Forward" and face the problems of life, and spend yourself in the service of mankind, for its uplifting.

"Go Forward," there is no other way to make progress. There is no other way to victory. Standing still stagnation and defeat.

In the name of God, "Go Forward." "Be strong! We are not here to play, to dream, to drift, We have hard work to do, and leads to life. Stand up to the struggle, face it. 'Tis God's gift. Be strong, be strong!"

The Marion Electric and Furniture Co. of 188 South Main street offers its electric electrical refrigeration, electrical wiring, repairing, fixture sales and installation, radio sales and service and furniture and stoves. Chief among the items mentioned at this season of the year is electrical refrigeration. Much time and effort has been devoted to the development of this end of the business by R. I. Ulmer, manager, and his associates in the six years that the company has held refrigerator franchises.

Mr. Ulmer in commenting on the electric refrigerator and its increasing popularity points out that the general use of this type of refrigerator throughout the country has lifted refrigeration out of the luxury into the commodity class of household needs. Refrigeration has come to mean far more than the mere delay of food deterioration. The cooling of food is only one of many accomplishments open to the owner of any one of a score of popular electric boxes. The making of ice and frozen dishes and the preservation of the delicate, right-from-the-garden freshness in perishable foods are among the most prominent.

Displayed on the sales floor of the store are current models of the Apex, Copeland and Buckeye refrigerators. A variety of sizes are shown and each has its own exclusive features in design, mechanism or price.

Mr. Ulmer describes the Apex as "America's Most Beautiful Electric Refrigerator." Elegance and striking individuality have been achieved without extravagance in the distinctive lines of the new 1932 models. Twenty years of manufacturing experience in the electric appliance field and years of experimentation in electric refrigeration are behind the cooling mechanism that has proven another triumph for Apex. Powerful and ever dependable, the Apex unit establishes box temperatures at new lows without apparent effort, slight consumption of electricity and without noise or vibration. The condensing unit rests on cushions of five rubber which in turn are springs of the finest tempered steel. This equipment is installed in the base of the cabinet where it has the advantage of the coolest air in the room adding to the economy and efficiency of operation. The cooling and freezing compartments, as a result in this arrangement are at the most convenient height.

Second in the Marion Electric and Furniture line is the Copeland, which Mr. Ulmer says is known as the "Healthful Guardian of the Table." Copeland embodies every new feature accepted and expected by the public and it is recognized everywhere for its quality of engineering, material and workmanship. Among the advantages it offers that are appreciated by every user are the rounded corners which throughout simplify cleaning of the cabinet; the clear top which provides additional shelf space; welcome in any kitchen, a lower sliding shelf is a distinctive feature and the sanitary flat bar shelves help toward the easy handling of full dishes placed in the box. All models are equipped with a slide basket, a wire container which keeps fruits, etc., within handy reach. Copeland is also equipped with double-depth drawers for frozen desserts, a cold drawer for frozen meats or for freezing a 10 pound cake of ice, a bottle opener on the door strikes an interior light and quality built cabinets throughout.

Mr. Ulmer describes the Buckeye as the "World's Most Sensational Refrigerator Value." A product at a price that brings it within reach of every modern home. Combined in this refrigerator are many improvements of construction and design. The cabinets are built in the modern way with an exterior finish of gleaming white, baked enamel baked on the surface of furniture steel. This refrigerator is equipped with a dependable silent trouble-free unit. Again calling attention to the place that refrigeration has taken as a necessity in the modern home, Mr. Ulmer invites the public to visit the Marion Electric and Furniture Co. and inspect the new refrigerators. There is no obligation whatever and store attendants will be glad to demonstrate and explain each model in detail. Refrigerator companies are in the front rank of those who have made it possible for the multitude to enjoy modern conveniences through the plan of installment purchases and a variety of payment plans are available to those who wish to buy. In addition to the display of refrigerators now on the sales floor the store is featuring living room, dining room and bedroom suites.
